

Liberty is a big deal.

Liberty means the ability to make your own decisions and be responsible for engaging in peaceful and honest actions.

Thus, you deserve to be free from outside control.

If you can't make your own decisions and be responsible for them, someone else is making decisions for you.

That's slavery.

Are you making your own decisions? Or is someone forcing you to choose from the lesser of two evils? Where did they get the right to do that?

How did they get more human rights than you?

Something is very wrong today.
We are facing an American crisis.

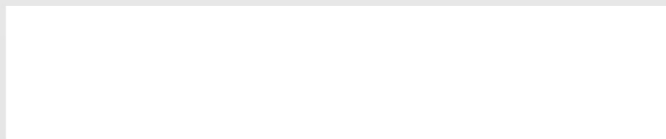

Operation:
Common Sense

FreeMeProject.com

Stay tuned for Episode 2 of "The American Crisis":
"Education"

design by meg mcclain [megmcclain.com]

How did he get more Human Rights than me?

We all want the good things in life but how do you get them? Hard work and connections help. But there's something else. Without it, you're doomed to a life of poverty and isolation.

What is this magical thing?
Liberty.

